6–7 June 1997. The Conference on New York State History will be held this year in Saratoga Springs on the campus of Skidmore College. This annual event is a meeting of academic and public historians, publishers, educators, and general students of history who come together to discuss topics and issues related to the people of NY in historical perspective and to share information and ideas regarding historical research, programming, and the networking of services.

Session on New Netherland

This year one of the ten presentation sessions will focus on New Netherland. The panel will present a critical appraisal of publications and visual history presentations pertaining to pre-Revolutionary Dutch culture. The panel is designed to elicit a multidisciplinary exchange between cultural, social, and economic historians, archaeologists, linguists, architectural, art, and church historians and others interested in the legacy of the Dutch in America.

This panel is a follow-up to the 1988 symposium at NYU, which produced the book, Colonial Dutch Studies: An Interdisciplinary Approach (NY, 1988) edited by Eric Nooter and Patricia U. Bonomi. The panel consists of the speakers: Joyce D. Goodfriend on history, Paul R. Huey on archaeology, and Eric Nooter on exhibitions; commentators: Firth H. Fabend, Meta F. Janowitz, and Ruth Piwonka. The panel will be moderated by Charles Gehring.

Publications
In Mohawk Country: Early Narratives about a Native People. Edited by Dean R. Snow, Charles T. Gehring, and William A. Starna. Syracuse University Press, 1996. These narratives, from Van den Bogaert in 1634 to De Witt Clinton in 1810, bring to life the rapid changes experienced by both the Mohawk and their European neighbors. Wars, catastrophic epidemics, and the diplomacy of nearly two centuries are all well represented in this volume. Available in paperback for $16.95 and hardcover for $39.95 at the NYS Museum Shop.

Jaarboek van het Centraal Bureau voor Genealogie, deel 50, 1996. This yearbook will be of special interest because the majority of the articles are related to New Netherland. Seven of the ten New Netherland articles are based on talks presented at a symposium organized around the theme Nieuw Nederland in biografisch perspectief by the Werkgroep Nieuw Nederland in 1995 at Middelburg, the Netherlands.

The NNP is pleased to announce that the educational packets have been reprinted and are ready for distribution. Thanks to the generosity of the Society of Daughters of Holland Dames these extremely popular and highly successful educational packets are once again available for use. The sets consist of two fourth-grade curricula, called The New World through Dutch Eyes and Daily Life in New Netherland. The two seventh-grade curricula are titled From the Old World to the New and People in New Netherland. The material consists of numerous translated primary source materials, suggestions for use in the classroom and lesson plans. The packets are free to educators; for other use we suggest a donation of $10.00 per set which will be set aside for future publications.

On Tuesday, February 25, the NNP and FNN said goodbye to Tjaco and Tara van den Hout at a farewell reception at the Century Club in NYC. Ever since their arrival at the post of Consul General of the Netherlands in New York, Tjaco and Tara have been active supporters of the Project.

13 September 1997. The twentieth annual Rensselaerswijk Seminar will focus on The West India Company and the Atlantic World. Speakers will be Dr. Oliver Rink, State University of California at Bakersfield; Dr. W. Klooster, John Carter Brown Library; Dr. Johannes Postma, Mankato State University; Dr. J. A. Schiltkamp, Amsterdam, the Netherlands; Prof. Dr. W. Th. M. Frijhoff, Vrije Universiteit, Amsterdam. Note that the date is earlier than usual this year. Look for more information about the conference in the next newsletter.

Scheiden doet lijden!

Beginning with the presentation of the medal appointing Charles Gehring an Officer in the Order of Orange-Nassau in 1994, the Project has always been able to count on their assistance and advice; their interest in what the NNP produces and its dissemination led to many new contacts and sources of financial support. Thank you very much, Tjaco and Tara, for your support. We wish you both the very best at your new post back in Patria!

The winner of the 1997 Alice P. Kenney Award is Greg Huber of Wyckoff, New Jersey. Mr. Huber was chosen for his persistence in informing the public about the New World Dutch barn—an architectural phenomenon which has its roots in the Netherlands but was adapted to agricultural requirements of the New World. The award will be presented at the annual meeting on 26 April.

On 14 February 1997 about 25 people attended the study day organized by the Werkgroep Nieuw Nederland at the Gemeentearchief in Amsterdam. Speakers were Jan Baart on the role of textiles in the trade with the Indians; Frans Wojciechowski on the problems in defining boundaries between various Indian groups; Ernst van den Boogaart on historiography of the Tupinamba, a Brazilian Indian tribe, compared with the historiography of New Netherland Indians; Marijke de Bruin on trademarks of Dutch traders. Nico Plomp announced the publication of a list relating to New Netherland in the collections of the Centraal Bureau voor Genealogie.

Karen Hartgen posted the following to relate what has transpired since the agreement was made between the Dormitory Authority and the New York Archeological Council on 21 Oct. 1996. The press release was dated 10 Feb. 1997: The New York Archeological Council [NYAC] today announced that it found it necessary to begin legal proceedings to hold the Dormitory Authority of the State of New York [DASNY] in contempt for its recent actions at a downtown Albany archaeological site. An Order to Show Cause was issued on February 7, 1997. NYAC contends that DASNY destroyed portions of the Dutch community of Beverwijck dating from the mid-17th century.

Legal proceedings begun against Dormitory Authority

NYAC had commenced a proceeding in October 1996 challenging DASNY’s failure to comply with legal requirements concerning the study and mitigation of Albany’s priceless historical site. The case was settled by a Stipulation among the parties which was ordered by Justice Teresi on October 21, 1996. The agreement required DASNY to give preference to archaeology during construction of its headquarters.

NYAC claims that DASNY constructed its sewer lines in what archaeologists consider an extraordinarily rich area of the site, in clear violation of Justice Teresi’s Order. The value of this resource is confirmed by the archaeological work done to date by DASNY’s consultant. Charles Cobb NYAC’s former president who closely monitors progress at the site, stated: “This unique site contained well preserved archaeological remains from Native American and Dutch settlers living in and around the 17th century settlements of Beverwijck and Fort Orange.” Archaeologists agree that this site is one of the most important sites in the early European settlement of North America. The site represents the only Dutch residential and commercial area which has been investigated during this period in the US. Preservation and promotion of Albany’s early Dutch heritage can have a positive effect on economic development by providing an attractive and unique tourist destination.

Cobb, who serves as NYAC’s lead representative for this site, stated: “These areas of the site have been irreparably damaged by this latest construction. DASNY’s actions, which were entirely unnecessary, warrant the imposition of a substantial penalty. The loss to the public and to the scientific community is immeasurable. Archaeological investigation, research and analysis of our nation’s heritage can and must be incorporated into the designing and planning of development projects at the earliest practical time in order to allow both to proceed responsibly. NYAC hopes this measure will be received and understood by DASNY.” NYAC is seeking fines and damages in the amount of $200,000 to punish DASNY for its actions. Archaeological deposits are fragile resources and, once removed, can never be reconstructed. Unfortunately, Albany has again lost an irreplaceable portion of its unique heritage.

NYAC is represented by Carl G. Dworkin and Marc S. Gerstman. For more information, contact Charles Cobb at 607-777-2487.

This section of the newsletter not only appears at the end but is often the final item considered. If there is no event which seems appropriate to reinforce with a document or additional related material, we try to find an association with an anniversary date as we did in the last issue with the 400th anniversary of Willem Barentsz’s overwintering on Nova Zembla. This issue was easy because 350 years ago on 11 May Petrus Stuyvesant arrived in New Netherland as Director General. To commemorate this anniversary we will publish in the next few issues items related to Stuyvesant’s first year on Manhattan. It seemed appropriate to begin with his commission.

[Text taken from Fernow’s Documents related to the Colonial History of the State of New York, volume xiv, page 178.]

Commission for Petrus Stuyvesant as Director on the coast of New Netherland as well as the island Curacao and the places thereupon depending.

The States General of the United Netherlands to all those to whom these presents shall come, or who shall hear them read, Health. Be it known: whereas we have deemed it advisable for the advancement of the affairs of the General Chartered West India Company not only to maintain the trade and population on the coast of New Netherland and places situate thereabout; also, the islands Curacao, Buenaire, Aruba and their dependencies, which have hitherto been encouraged thither from this country, but also to make new treaties and alliances with foreign princes and to inflict as much injury as possible on the enemy in his forts and strongholds as well by sea as by land; for which purposes it becomes necessary to appoint a person director; we, therefore, confiding in the probity and experience of Petrus Stuyvesant, formerly entrusted with our affairs in, and the government of, the aforesaid island of Curacao and the places thereon depending, we, being well pleased with his services there, have commissioned and appointed, and by these presents do commission and appoint the said Petrus Stuyvesant, director in the aforesaid countries of New Netherland, and the places thereunto adjoining, together with the aforementioned islands of Curacao, Buenaire, Aruba, and their dependencies; to administer, with the council as well now as hereafter appointed with him, the said office of director, both on water and on land, and in said quality, to attend carefully to the advancement, promotion and preservation of friendship, alliances, trade and commerce; to direct all matters appertaining to traffic and war, and to maintain in all things there, good order for the service of the United Netherlands and the General West India Company; to establish regularity for the safeguard of the places and forts therein; to administer law and justice as well civil as criminal; and, moreover, to perform all that concerns his office and duties in accordance with the charter, and the general and particular instructions herewith given, and to be hereafter given him, as a good and faithful director is bound and obliged by his oath in our hands to do; which done, we therefore order and command all other officers, common soldiers, together with the inhabitants and natives-residing in the aforesaid places as subject, and all whom it may concern, to acknowledge, respect and obey the said Petrus Stuyvesant as our director in the countries and places of New Netherland, and in the islands of Curacao, Buenaire, Aruba, and their dependencies, and to afford all help, countenance and assistance in the performance of these things, as we have found the same to be for the advantage of the Company. Done in our assembly at the Hague on the xxviii July 1646.

News from the FNN

The eleventh annual meeting of the Friends of New Netherland was held at the New York Genealogical and Bibliographical Society in New York on April 26, 1997. Recently elected President Peter J. Paulson welcomed members and guests, and introduced the new Board’s trustees: Carol W. Hageman, Vice-President; John van Schaick, Treasurer; Elisabeth Paling Funk, Secretary; Robert Alexander, Coen Blaauw, Anneke Bull, Peter R. Christoph, Marilyn Douglas, the Rev. J. F. Lydecker, Peter G. Rose, and Frederick W. Tibbitts, Jr. Anneke Bull, fundraising chair, thanked the members for their continued support and pledges, each one of which is important to the Project’s future. She expressed profound appreciation to the Prins Bernhard Fonds, which contributed the full amount of its pledge ($25,000) to the New Netherland Project. The Prins Bernhard Fonds is considered the most important cultural foundation of the Netherlands. It is a major contributor to the arts, humanities, sciences, cultural education, historic and nature preservation in the country. In addition to a central body of overseers represented by regional boards in each province and in the cities of Amsterdam, Den Haag, and Rotterdam. PBF contributes more than 23 million guilders or $14,600 000 to nearly 300 projects annually. In 1995, the NNP received $9,627 for the transcription of “Correspondence XII, 1654-1658,” part of the series “New Netherland Documents.” In 1996 the PBF added another gift of $5,523 for the first part of the translation of this volume. The Project and the Friends of New Netherland are grateful for this important contribution, which will be used to match NNP’s three-year grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Corporate Circle: Philip Morris Holland BV is a new member of the Corporate Circle consisting of Ahold Real Estate Company, Akzo Nobel, Inc., Citicorp/Citibank, Heineken, NV (sponsor of the 1996 New Netherland Project dinner), ING (U.S.) Capital Holdings Corp., KLM Royal Dutch Airlines (sponsor of this year’s New Netherland Project dinner), Loeff Claey's Verbeke, Nauta Dutilh, Philips Electronic North America Corporation, PTT Telecom Netherlands US, Inc., Rabobank, and Unilever, NV.

September 28, 1997. Join the festivities planned for the launching of the Kalmar Nyckel, a replica of the 17th-century sailing ship which initiated Sweden’s New World venture in the Delaware Valley in 1638. Launch day will begin with an 8:00 am church service at Old Swedes Episcopal Church, just a short walk from the shipyard. The Johan Printz Trumpeters from the Royal Swedish Academy of Music will perform. All are welcome. The launching ceremony is planned for 9:30 am with music from the Delaware Symphony Orchestra. Participating in the ceremony will be: Tatiana Copeland, Honorary Chairperson of the launch; Thomas R. Carper, Governor of Delaware; James H. Sills, Mayor of Wilmington; Rolf Ekeus, Swedish Ambassador to the United States; and Ove Joansen, Cultural Counselor for the Swedish Embassy. The ceremony will conclude with the command to send the vessel down the ways and into the Christina River at high tide. The Coryelle Brigade will provide a cannon salute. Directions: The shipyard is near Christina Park in Wilmington, DE. Take I-95 to I-495; follow I-495 to Exit 3; follow 12th Street to the T-junction and turn left; follow the road to Spruce Street; turn left and go to East 7th Street; proceed past Fort Christina Park until you arrive at the shipyard on the right.

October 8 or October 18, 1997. The New York Public Library announces the following tour in its Programs at the Center for the Humanities: New York’s Knickerbocker Legacy. “From the aristocratic airs of Fifth Avenue’s Knickerbocker Club to the team colors of the New York Mets, the Dutch influence still surrounds us. Even New York City’s flag with the blue, white, and orange of “old” Amsterdam. Our tour guide, Justin Ferate, has devised a special bus tour to explore New York’s rich Dutch ancestry, including visits to sites and monuments in Manhattan and Brooklyn (but be prepared to do some walking as well). Rest assured that Justin has several surprises—and plenty of New York tales—in store for you.” Meet at the 40th Street entrance of the NYPL. The $90 fee will include lunch and admissions. The Dutch Triangle: The Netherlands and the Atlantic Slave Trade, 1621-1664, by Willie F. Page. This book documents the involvement of the Netherlands in the early Atlantic slave trade, and examines the forms of slavery in Dutch colonies in the New World. The author treats the Dutch West India Company’s attempt to promote settlement in Brazil, Guiana, and the Caribbean with empathy toward the sufferings of the natives and the slaves, and an understanding, if not approval, of the goals of the enslavers. His analysis of the Dutch settlements on the islands of Aruba, Bonaire, and Curaçao offer new and interesting insights.

One of the most fascinating figures of New Netherland who later made a name for himself in New York politics is Jacob Leisler. For the past nine years David W. Voorhees (editor of de Halve Maen) has been director and editor on the Papers of Jacob Leisler Project at New York University. To-date the project has collected over 3000 copies of documents. Voorhees’s careful reading and analysis of these papers have provided new insights into the life and character of Leisler as well as the persistence of Dutch culture after the English takeover. Following is a list of recent articles by Voorhees:

“‘to assert our Right before it be quite lost’: The Leisler Rebellion in the Delaware River Valley” in Pennsylvania History, vol. 64 (Winter 1997), 5-27.

The Friends of the New Netherland Project are proud to announce that Dennis Sullivan of Voorheesville, NY has been named the recipient of the 1997 Hendricks Manuscript Award.

1997 Hendricks Award

The award is given annually by the Friends for the work that best documents the Dutch colonial experience in the new world. His manuscript, “The Punishment of Crime in Colonial New York: The Dutch Experience in Albany During the Seventeenth Century,” is the first major work to examine the punishment practices of the Beverwijck/Albany court throughout the seventeenth century. It delineates the changes that occurred in these practices amid fluctuations in the fur trade and after English conquest of New Netherland in 1664. The book is being published by Peter Lang and will be available in October. The award will be presented at the Rensselaerswijck Seminar on September 13.

Sullivan, who holds a doctorate in criminal justice from the University at Albany, has written extensively about justice issues. Currently he serves as Director of the Institute for Economic and Restorative Justice and as editor of an international journal, The Contemporary Justice Review. In his capacity as Voorheesville Village Historian, Sullivan has written about various aspects of the social life of the Town of New Scotland during the 19th century. His Voorheesville, New York: A Sketch of the Beginnings of a Nineteenth-Century Railroad Town is still available. He and his wife, Georgia Gray, have two children, Kimberly and Erin.

Under Two Flags is a documentary film produced by the Acorn Foundation of New York City. Of all the documentaries about New Netherland this thirty minute film captures a feeling for the Dutch possession and sums up its history and influence better than any other—whether American or Dutch. It can be seen at the end of this year’s Rensselaerswijck Seminar and...

The Batavia Shipyard. Anyone crossing the Houtribdijk from Enkhuizen to Lelystad is struck by the sight of the tallship Batavia in the distance. A visit to the shipyard where this replica of a VOC-retourschip lies at anchor is well worth the effort. Not only will you be able to inspect this magnificent ship from inside-out at your leisure but you will also be able to witness nearby the construction of De Zevum Provinciën, the flagship of Admiral Michiel de Ruyter. The visitors center will provide you with additional information about the history of the ships and their construction. The center also has a tavern called Het Tolhuis which serves refreshments and light fare. Armchair tourists can visit the site on the web at: &lt;http://www.flnet.nl/~batavia/pagina0.html&gt;

In keeping with the theme of the Rensselaerswyck Seminar, it seemed appropriate to highlight the West India Company in this section of the newsletter. What better instrument to feature than what could be considered the birth certificate of the WIC? As space prohibits publication of the entire charter of 3 June 1621, only the first page will be reproduced and translated below. The most accessible place to find the charter in both Dutch and English is in A. J. F. van Laer's Van Rensselaer Bowier Manuscripts, beginning on page 86.

The States General of the United Netherlands to all who shall see these presents or hear them read, greeting. Be it known, that we, noticing that the prosperity of this country and the welfare of its inhabitants consist principally in navigation and trade, which from time immemorial has been carried on by this country with good fortune and great blessing with all countries and kingdoms; and desiring that the aforesaid inhabitants not only be maintained in their former navigation, commerce and trade, but also that their commerce may be increased as much as possible, especially in conformity with the treaties, alliances, conventions and covenants concerning commerce and navigation formerly made with other princes, republics and nations, which we intend shall be punctually kept and observed in all their parts; and finding by experience that without the common help, aid and means of a general company, no profitable business can be carried on, protected and maintained in the part hereafter designated on account of the great risk from pirates, extortions and the like, which are incurred on such long and distant voyages; we, therefore, many other and different pregnant reasons and considerations also us thereunto moving, after mature deliberation of Council, and for very pressing causes, have resolved that the navigation, trade and commerce in the West Indies, Africa and other countries hereafter designated, shall henceforth not be carried on otherwise than with the common united strength of the merchants and inhabitants of this country and that to this end there shall be established a general company which, on account of our great love for the common weal and in order to conserve the trade and welfare of the inhabitants of this country, we will maintain and strengthen with our help, favor and assistance, so far as the present state and condition of this country will in any way admit, and for that purpose furnish with a proper charter and endow with the privileges and exemptions hereafter enumerated, to wit:

The Netherlands in Perspective. The Dutch Way of Organizing a Society and its Setting by William Z. Shetter. The book covers the physical setting and the form given to land and water in the Netherlands, with special attention to physical planning; the many organizations within the society from commerce and education to the Dutch language; the structure of opinion and belief in religious groups and political parties; the background in history from the origins of the nation to the most recent past. Special attention is given to the unique stamp the Dutch put on questions such as the restructuring of political differences, the handling of dissent, the ways of reaching a national consensus on such difficult issues such as drugs, euthanasia and abortion, and the roles assigned to the individual. The book is intended for anyone with an interest in the Netherlands beyond the often stereotyped face “Holland” presents to the world. The book (224pp; ISBN: 90 5517 079 8) is available for £44.50 (not including shipping and handling) from: Nederlands Centrum Buitenlanders, Afdeling Verkoop, Postbus 638, 3500 AP Utrecht. Translations grow old just as we do. Over the years new information from newly discovered sources appears which enables the translator to give a more accurate rendition of the text in English. One such translation is that of Adriaen van der Donck’s Beschrijving van Nieu Nederlandt. The old translation by Jeremiah Johnson in 1841, published in a revised edition by Syracuse University Press in 1968, suffers greatly from old age. Several years ago Diederik Goedhuys of South Africa contacted the NNP with the proposal to undertake a new translation. The resulting work is a great improvement over Johnson’s early effort. So far we have been unable to find a publisher for the entire translation. Following is an extract of what appears relating to the native Americans in the publication In Mohawk Country, 107-109.

Fare and Food of the Indians

In food and drink, even on their feast days, the Indians are not at all excessive, wasteful, frivolous or lavish, and easily contented so long as they have something to keep body and soul together and satisfy hunger and thirst. Nor is it customary among them as it is with us that the highest-placed, noblest or richest expects to be treated accordingly and better than a poor devil or a common man, but always and everywhere their food and drink are sufficient and, according to season, the same for all.

New Netherland Project, CEC 8th Fl., Albany, NY 12230 Voice (518) 474-6067 Email: cgehring@unix2.nysed.gov Fax: (518) 474-5786/473-0472 GIRO: J. Venema 6566735 Homepage: http://nnp.nysed.gov
Their usual drink has always been water, from a fountain or spring if they can get it, as they seldom fail to do. When they are well provided they will occasionally drink grape juice, if it is in season, with fresh meat or fish. They drink the juice fresh and never turn it into wine. Beer, brandy or strong liquor are unknown to them, except to those who frequently move among our people and have learned that beer and wine taste better than water. The Indian languages are varied and rich, yet none has a word denoting drunk. Drunkenness they call madness, and to drunken men they refer as fools, such as those few who associate often with our people or are otherwise able to obtain liquor, for most of them have no taste for liquor at all. [55] In order to prevent insolence, the government has forbidden the sale of strong drink to them. They drink greedily in getting drunk and are then quite difficult and like an epileptic in his cups, as the saying goes. Before they become accustomed to alcohol they are easily made drunk, a small beer or two being enough to do it. But in time they learn to tolerate liquor equally well as the Dutch do. Gout, podagra, pimply and red noses or similar snares-are unknown among them, as are drink-related accidents.

Their food is normally fish and meat of every kind, depending on the time of year and the locality where they happen to be. They have no pride or particular fashion in preparing and serving these, and cook fish or meat simply in water without any herbs, salt or lard, other than may be naturally present in it. They are also ignorant of stewing, braising, Banking, frying, etc. and rarely heat or grill anything, unless it be morsels of meat and small fish when traveling or hunting and having to make do. For bread they use maize, or Turkish corn; mills being unknown to them, their women beat or pound it, as the Hebrews did their manna in the wilderness, and bake cakes of it. They will also add the grits to meat to make a broth, the way some use barley or rice here. But their common fare for which this corn is most used is porridge, known locally as samp. Its use among the Indians is so general that rarely a day passes without their eating it, unless they are traveling or hunting, and one can hardly ever enter an Indian dwelling or this porridge is being eaten or prepared. All of them, including women, children and old people, are so attached and used to it that when they visit us or each other they first of all ask and look for samp. Without it one cannot entertain them to their liking, nor can they, so it seems, eat their fill. They often cook samp together with meat or fish when available, mostly not fresh, but dried and pounded into meal. They do this towards the end of winter and the approach of spring when the hunting season is past and their stock of provisions is nearly exhausted. They also eat a lot of green beans, which they consider a delicacy when boiled with fresh meat in plenty of water. Further they take as food and sustenance all sorts of meat, fish, and fruit, which the country yields and they can obtain. They do not observe customary or fixed meal times as our people usually do, and judge it best to eat when they are hungry. They have tremendous control over their appetites, stomachs, and bodies, so that they can get by with very little for two, three or four days. When supplies are ample once again they will quickly make up for the loss or delay, yet this does not upset their stomachs or make them ill. Though stout trenchermen, they are not gluttons. Ceremonies of seating at the upper or lower end of the table, being the first or last to fall to or to be served or waited upon, I have not been able to notice. Except on the major festivals, they very seldom invite one another, but those under their roof when meal time comes around will be served as well. No one is passed over and it is no baking.

When they intend going on a long journey to hunt or to wage war, and know or surmise they will not find supplies, they provide themselves with parched meal made of roasted corn. Such meal goes far and is nourishing so that a small bag lasts them for many days. Less than a quarter of the contents is used up in a day, because it is so concentrated and swells out again when moistened. They carry the little parcel with them and when hungry they take a small handful from it and drink some water and feel themselves well enough looked after to carry on for another day. If they can get some meat or fish to go with it the corn meal serves as a slice of bread and needs no baking.
